THE OLD FENCE GATE

The old fence gate, the old fence gate,
With the old fence gate, and the fence gate.
Oh, it's a long, long way and a crooked gate, For it's right now by the candidate.

It swings and sings
Where the old fence gate is free;
It's a long, long way and a crooked
gate, Will you vote for me?—

The old fence gate, the old fence gate,
Where the tow-head children watch and wait,
For the long, long, long, hard-at-fair,
It is paid to them in the gate.
It swings and sings
Where the old fence gate is free;

Will you vote for me?—

—Atlanta Constitution.

THE PLAGUY GIRLS.

We Have No Record of Them as Ever Having Been Born, But They Just Grew Up.

Essay by A. F. Parkinson, Esq., As
Read Before The Northwest
Literary Society.

(Published by Request.)

Girls, the beautiful little creatures, never were born, but grew. We have no record of any girls until we read of Cain going into the Land of Nod, and took unto himself a wife. So they must have sprung up in that land, like a mushroom on the Dakota prairie. Girls those days were not born, but grew up at the present time. Just now they are up to day going into her dressing room and bidding fitstite of the evening dress, the curling iron, the box of Lily White or cream balm, and the Clash of Rose to put on that beautiful rose cheek we all so much admire. Then again imagine the disappointment of her fellow that she has not yet got her part but will not, but to get a mouthful of pain. But girls these days do not grow up. The first we notice the girl is when she is old enough to start to school. Then we see troops of them trotting off to school with book in hand, and hear their merry laugh, and the clatter of their little tongues, as they practice their letters a score or two of writing the hand. Then we see her as she is all fixed up in her best Sunday clothes trotting off to Sunday school. "See the swing she had!" Even at this age she has the pride so characteristic of the American people. Then again we see her as mamma has fixed her up to attend some children party, and she is all dressed up in her best, and has her hands on the sleeve of her dress to express his admiration of her, and she says "don't touch me, you will get my clean dress all dirty!" Poor little fellow, mortified, chagrined and ashamed, he looks all around to see if anyone has heard it, finding there has not, he slips it to play with the other boy, and amuses himself very much from those of the boy. She will play for hours with her dolls and clothes. While the boy, not content with so quiet amusement, gets out, the fun can be seen to outlast the fun, following the rule that when separated from the house friends, he is always a fanning arrangement. The machine is worked by either hand or mule power. The only surprise is that such inventive genius is not developed in the Old World. The general impression is that the inventorability of observation is developed by the system of public school education of our great to do with the cultivation of these great facilities—Meehan's Monthly.

ANOTHER ASSIGNMENT.

L. Goldsmith, the Owensboro Main-Street Clothier, is Forced to the Wall.

Another disturbing wave rolled over the commercial surface of Owensboro last Thursday.

This was caused by the assignment of L. Goldsmith, the clothier.

It is a sad assignment, as it was thought that Mr. Goldsmith was on a solid footing. He has been doing well, but the recent short sales reduced his assets to a minimum.

He is a man of means, but

LOCAL BREVIETIES.

Going fact—tobacco canvas—Sulzer's. Sulzer's still shows at prices that will surprise you.

James Dean, of Rock Vale, was in the city yesterday.

Remember a Ladies $4.00 piece for $1.25 at Sulzer's.

Miss Mary Murray returned to Harlan County Monday.

A public well is being driven at the corner of Wall and Poplar streets.

Mr. Logan C. Murray, of New York, was here visiting relatives Monday.

Morris Eakridge, of Hardinsburg, was in the city Saturday legal business.

Mrs. U. G. Hill and son, Virgil, went to Henderson yesterday to visit relatives.

Mr. G. M. Mullin, of the bridge crew, spent Sunday with his parents in this city.

E. Woods, of Louisville, was at his old home in this city a few days last week.

The estate of the late D. M. Griffith, Owensboro, has been appraised $40,555.70.

Master Walter Odey gave a party to his many juvenile friends last Friday evening.

Mrs. W. H. Mallon and her daughter, Delta are visiting Mrs. Joe Friel near Victoria.

N. G. Jackson has rented Caleb Hawkin's farm on the picket and will run it this year.

Rev. S. G. Shelly closed his meeting at Hotel last Friday with 17 additions to the church.

Mrs. E. R. Ogleby went to Mr. Sterling yesterday to visit her sister, Mrs. Gie, Chick.

Mr. C. N. Masterson, of Lewisport, spent several days with Miss Etta Blum last week.

James Masterson, of the Owensboro, banker office, is the guest of his sister, Mrs. F. Faley.

Miss Amanda Deane came up on the train yesterday from Owensboro. She is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Moorman.

Engineer James A. Buckley brought the "Branch" engine in last Saturday evening. Mr. Buckley is nursing a wounded hand.

The news has issued an artistic calendar for 1864, for the benefit of its friends and subscribers. They are now ready for distribution.

Mrs. Kate Bennett, of Irvington, Mr. C. F. Heywood and Miss Jessie May Heywood are at the Hotel at the Heywood House Saturday and Sunday.

The Extra Club will give a Valentine tea at Mrs. C. W. Moorman's Wednesday February 1st, hours 3 to 5 and 7 to 9. Usual admission. All are cordially invited.

It is reported that Col. Scott Stettinius has sold the Palmetto to D. A. Dewart and his son, W. S. Stettinius. We don't put much faith in the report. Col. Scott has been in the business too long.

Mr. Jas. R. Biggs, of Stephenport, has been appointed a store-keeper guager in the Owensboro district. Mr. Biggs is one of the cleverest men in the county and a good Democrat. His appointment will give great satisfaction.

The local editor is in receipt of a handsome weight a present from John C. C. It is a blue and gold guage, from the Victoria mines, highly polished and neatly carved, with the initials, "C. S. C."

It will ever be kept in remembrance of a good friend and as a memento from the mine of the richest coal in the world.

Dr. S. W. Watkins and Mr. Kirt Weatherholt have bought the vacant lot on the corner of Main and High streets. They have large graving and will build handsome residences as soon as settled weather sets in. These new residences will be admirable improvements to that portion of the city.

Mr. J. D. Brashear is in the market for Green river types of tobacco constantly buying and handling at the Long Branch where he has a large quantity of the finest and best on hand samples. Mr. H. W. Duncen, riding master for the company, will also call on the tobacco growers at their farms. The American Co. buys extensively and pays full market prices.

The advertisement of the Falls City Tobacco Warehouse appears in this issue.

Mr. A. Duttschke is the agent for this section, and farmers who ship their tobacco to him will be well satisfied.

Whether they go with or not, Mr. Duttschke will see to it that it is well cared for and brings the top of the market.

Remember the Falls City when you ship your tobacco to Louisville.

IF YOU HAVE A BUSINESS
Or you are a man, boy, girl, or woman
It is your duty to buy

Young Lady Falls into Green River at the Spottsville Lock and Meets Her Death.

A most distressing accident occurred at Spottsville.

Last Friday night while Miss Verna Cravens, a popular and lovely young girl, sixteen years of age, was returning from prayer-meeting she fell from the lock into the river and was drowned.

She was accompanied by her sister and Mr. John Grey, a well known young man in that section.

The two were walking across the lock when Mr. Grey's foot slipped and he fell into the river.

He was encumbered by a heavy coat and boots, but finally succeeded in swimming ashore. Then it was time for the girls to go home.

Miss Cravens who had fallen off the lock had also fallen and was drowned.

The sister could render no assistance, but had to stand and see her sister perish.

The body was found Saturday morning.
